

REINSTATE YOUR NATIONAL VETERINARY ACCREDITATION PROGRAM ACCREDITATION AFTER MISSING YOUR ACCREDITATION RENEWAL DATE (ARD)

There are two options for you to reinstate your accreditation:

- 1) An online renewal system is available which may also be used to reinstate your expired accreditation by using written instructions demonstrating how to apply for renewal on-line (pdf 70kb) or a ten-minute video on the renewal process.
- 2) A hard copy of the VS Form 1-36A may be forwarded to the NVAP Coordinator who oversees the State in which your business address is located. Mailing addresses can be found on the NVAP Coordinator list. If you performed accredited duties in more than one State before your accreditation expired, it is only necessary to reinstate your accreditation in the State in which your business address is located. Doing so will reinstate your accreditation privileges in all States in which you were once authorized to perform accredited duties if your veterinary license or "legally able to practice" statuses in those States are still in place.

Complete your required number (three for Category I animals, six for Category II animals) of APHIS Approved Supplemental Training (AAST) which is available in three formats:

1. The NVAP Web site on the How do I Take Training Modules? page
2. Printed or CD materials purchased by using the Supplemental Training Materials Order Form
3. Lectures at veterinary meetings and conventions on the Upcoming Veterinary Conferences page

Retain your AAST Certificate of Completion for each AAST module. You may complete your AAST modules within 3 years prior to your accreditation reinstatement, and it is essential that you retain your certificates as they will be needed for accreditation reinstatement and may be requested during periodic training audits.

Still have questions? See Additional Information or contact your local NVAP Coordinator.
